NOTES

1.
This area provides some visual interest for the page. it will have a slick image / montage in the background, with the tagline top-left, and links bottom-right to pull the user into learning more about NiteFly or signing up.
2.
This is a visual display of that NiteFly is all about. It's meant to give new users a quick understanding of why our service might be useful to them.
3.
This is the integration of the NiteFly Twitter feed. it will show the most recent tweets, as well as having a link that allows users to follow us.

NOTES

This page is the starting point for the primary functionality of the site. It is deliberately being kept very simple to have a clean, google-esque experience.

1. Users can enter a starting point for their itinerary or they enter the zip code of where they like to hang out. The back end will figure out what kind of data has been entered and process it accordingly.

search

- NOTES
- This is the results page, and contains the majority of the user experience. The result set could be anywhere from 1-10 results.
1.

If the user mouses over the pin or info box for a result, the corresponding pin on the map will highlight.
2.

All venue links should launch the site for that venue in a new tab or window 3.

These coupons may come from a 3rd party, or may be internal to NiteFly. We need a design for our proprietary coupons.
4.

when clicked, the x will remove this item from the list and generate a new one it's place.
5.

The map should show pins for all venues listed on the results page. The pin for a given venue will highlight when the user mouses over that venue in the results list

NOTES

This page is the main reason our audience will use the service. It gives them an itinerary and coupons that they can bring with them as the traverse their evening out in the real world.

This page must print neatly on 8.5" x 11" paper, though it may overflow onto multiple sheets if there are many venues.

This page is completely standalone and does not sit within the wrapper.

1.
Logo should be clear and prominent. Should be printable in full color, but also degrade nicely into greyscale or black and white.
2.
Coupons may come from a 3rd party, or may be internal to NiteFly. We need a design for our proprietary coupons.
3.
Each coupon should be branded with a watermark of the NiteFly logo and name. This must print well in either color or greyscale, and is essential as a leave behind for venue owners to be able to see how much business we are driving to them. It is essential that each coupon have a visual association with the NiteFly brand.
